

Abstract

Flexing-T fasteners that are to be used to hold objects on walls and ceilings require that a hole be made prior to inserting the fastener. A drill is usually used to make these holes. The Self-Drilling fastener has a drilling tip at the end opposite the flexing end. This improvement allows the fastener to make its own hole without the need of a drill.